The Chemehuevi Indian Tribe has now been closed for 52 days. 'Essential' employees were requested to work and by-and-large have all done so. In some cases, temporary employees have covered for those employees unwilling to come to work. During this time we have been able to pay all employees – working or not - through various means to guarantee them an income in this uncertain time and to let them know that they had a job when the situation had improved.

Certain employees of the Tribal government have been returning to work over the last week and it is now time to bring all employees back to their respective jobs. Employees are to return to work at 7:30 A.M. on Wednesday, May 20th, 2020.

Should an employee refuse to return to work they will be allowed to use their accumulated vacation/annual leave or apply for unemployment
